Bill: we found it! Look on the table.

Carol: Hi! How is it that you're almost never here?

Dana: I may be savage, ~~is~~ sick, and downright grim, as well as violent under intimidation, offense, and attack, but I am marginally human. I'm affected by emotion, perhaps more than most. Memoir installments 1-30 will bear this out. Indeed, much of what I am today evolved from the fact I did give a shit for my friends, and was prepared to lose anything in the service of friends, up to and including blood, organs, whatever. To be better prepared, I made up for strength and status with skills. Did you think I developed combat skills and weapons for mere personal gain? If I were as cold as I ^{appeared} suggest, I'd be hell to be near and unlikable.

Lisa; ~~the pre~~ Hi! The above requests do not apply to you, of course. The reason why you are mentioned in specifics is because you're here so often, and occasionally, I'm not.

Once more, I wish you luck on this exam, though I suspect you won't need it.

Perianne: Good luck on tonight's exam, since I feel you need it more since you were screaming through the rafters about it. Farewell on Saturday.

Bob, I want my books back. How are things in Huntington? Say Hello to Sue for me if I can't.

FRED; Somebody said there are specs on these worlds. Is this true? Then why did I waste my time?

Will; bring back book I, or we won't be able to retire/muster out, which will bring terrible consequences to your family on Moughas, since I RUN MOUGHAS!! Don't say I'm being unfair, since by holding Book I nobody can know what to get on retirement/mustering out.

That concludes specifics. On to last words. OK, I misspelled it. I just made corrections, can you forgive me? Three hours of sleep don't help. More later...

11:50 AM George: You spelled my name wrong. Didn't I warn you about this? G-U-L-P.

Fred: You really should write smaller. Since the rest of us are not really interested in your private feud with Tom anyway, the least you can do is take up as little space as possible in the log book.

I have survived another ORCH exam!! In fact, it was much easier than I expected. Now I only have to worry about the final.

Kensie: "Lisa's character" as you call Felligree Mayfair was a medic, but she was only MED 3 (M.D. w no training after med. school) and she was incapacitated by the plague. She could not have saved your miserable neck. Also, Irving was also a medic (MED 5), but he, as we all know, was comatose. The fact remains that I, and I alone, could and did cure you of a disease that would otherwise have been fatal.

Another point - I don't see how (or why) my med skill would go down if I infected you with (~~non-corrupt~~) plague. My morals may not be very high, but my skill is great. (Low morals are a consequence of high social standing - or low social standing at times. There is a rather bizarre mathematical relationship too complicated to explain, or my skill should actually

I am accustomed to taking such statements at face value since very few people are foolish enough to make threats against powerful people (rich, highly placed socially, higher rank, etc.) that they do not intend to carry out. At any rate, nothing would please me more than to see Kinsie Game "take his share and leave." I have enough other things to occupy my mind and my attention without having to deal with malcontents.

LOUIS YOU CANNOT DESCRIBE ME RELY MAKE ERRORS AND NOT SIGN THEM, THUS GETTING ALL MY WAY MAKING AN ANONYMOUS ENTRY, THIS CONVINCES ME OF YOUR UNTRUSTWORTHINESS, INTOLERABLE, AND COURAGE IN FACE TO FACE.

This convinces me also that you don't have any concept of the English language. You can make a Public Service announcement to an individual concerning an unimportant matter. Indeed, it is a Public nuisance(?) to even bitch over it on paper. Although Perriane should be the one to mention this, she is not willing to back her ~~own~~ words up with force, whereas you have resorted to force by cowardly, indirect means to defeat attempts to counter you.

Warning II. Two can play this game, buddy. You have been a human hemorrhoid to this university and this forum. If necessary surgical methods will be used to remove hemorrhoids in certain cases. Do not force me to treat you as such.

Warning III. I am not bullshitting. Everybody who has known me for more than I month have surmised that, to use Traveller terms, I have weapons skills of IV, has high morals, and is a charitable Mercenary. I have encountered people like you in New York City, and have learned to deal with such as you. Maybe the rest of the forum have respect for mankind in general, but I don't, and I'm not going to beat around the bush, LOUIS, begone!! I care not if you naturally are like what you are, you are harming the forum!

Lisa, If you want assistance, all you have to do is ask. I have been hinting that I will help anyone who asks me, when conditions are favorable, particularly to those who need it. I have strived to resist becoming a product of an environment that produces negative aspects to my life and persona, such as prejudice, racism, cruelty, and a low regard for mankind. Punks in the city are so because they could not resist their environment. Installments 20-30 will mention a few such punks, and some of their fates. Sometimes the city is a 'lousy place to raise a kid, in fact, the place is as cold as hell.' Elton John, ROCKETMAN

Perrienne, you've recently been asking me how I find time to work when I'm down here. I do keep my books down here, and study when everybody leaves, but I do want to know this; why do you care? You have professed many times that you do not care, so why do you ask?

~~Out~~ of considering the above, curiosity, personal or intimate desire is ruled out. Humanitarian reasons is all I can fathom... for some results! - BK

To the Anonymous Writer of the Public Ser
Announcement (Louis?)

I am well aware of the fact that a Marquise is the French equivalent of a Marquioness. However, according to the Traveller rules, the term used for someone with a social standing of 13 who is female is Marquioness, regardless of national origin. Since Dr. Chatelier is from the planet Boughene (and not from France, ~~France~~) her title must be Marquioness even though she is of French ancestry. (Her relatives on her mother's side could have been British, one never knows in Traveller.)

12/3/79 The Philosopher's Corner by Mike Markowitz
Well, I'm happy to inform you all that the brain has been found and is presently undergoing decontamination procedures before being glued in place. It was apparently mistaken for Dolly Parton's nipple by U.S. customs officials while on its way to sunny Saskatchewan and subsequently locked in a box. Fortunately for me it was quickly recognized by a wallaby in transit and promptly mailed back to me. What a relief!
Now this month's Philosopher's Corner set

Captain Kirk on Penguins and Such

June 1946, the world's first manned penguin was catapulted into space. Soon to follow in July '47, the first true rendezvous was completed. Capt. Phillip Engle McGuin recalls the incident:

The acceleration was incredible... I climbed into the back for better visibility... the instrument panel was wild, the tail feathers were disintegrating... I nestled myself into the tongue to cushion the impact. Seconds ticked by... I realized I had the latch on and worried if the feet would hold... CRASH! the beast shuddered to a halt. I nervously released the tongue and climbed out the left nostril... took a deep breath and opened my eyes. We were safe inside.

Truly a harrowing experience. Subsequent adventures into the frozen space proved less hazardous, but equally if not more exciting. Due to the high cost of penguin development and training, a new (vehicle within) order. The Soviets had already introduced nuclear powered flies into their space program and we were determined to do them one better. These secretive developments lasted for nearly a year. Then in 1949, project Flyswatter was unveiled. It was an all aluminum, supertubular insect, neutrally complete with Flypaper and AA-12 back up units. The swatter arm assembly alone costs more than $4,000,000. Subsequent savings in weight and fuel bills lowered overall expense to justifiable levels and Flybat was virtually free, supplied weekly by the White House. Initial production started in Jan. 1952, and lasted 13 weeks, at a rate of 5 Flyswatter spacecrafts a week. March saw the development of Flyswatter "2", an upgraded unit with greater striking force.

Because of its enormous success, Flyswatter "2" prompted the Soviets to develop a counter, in effect, a Swatter-Swatter. Production was fast, and in a matter of seconds Swatter-Swatter "1" was in the air, knocking the hell out of our best pilots. There wasn't much we could do; the only environmentally sound alternative was to make peace with the Russians. Our nation was on the edge, about to concede peace to the ultimate threat, to be at the mercy of a merciless power, to boldly go ~~where~~ where no man has gone before! These are the voyages of the Starship Enterprise... to boldly go where no man has gone before... oh, sorry, that was said already.

Today was unusual. Although wonderful things kept happening I was miserably depressed. It's at times like this that I doubt my mental stability. (God forbid that I slip past that thin line and become a sane person) But I feel better now.

OK!! I give in! Now for the true story about Mike Markowitz (but don't say that I didn't try to protect you)

Many years ago, way back in 3rd or 4th grade, I invented an imaginary friend (as many children do). His name was Michael Markowitz. He was extremely creative. (mainly musically) He could play almost any musical instrument. As the years went by I gave him more creativity to play. He could now write his own music and make amazing creations out of paper. Well my mistake came when I gave him writing ability (Just a simple toss of the dice) He wrote a story in which he had a fictional character named Kurt Levitan! Imagine my shock when I suddenly found myself a creation of a figment of my own imagination! But Mike has been good to me. In the universe he made for me he gave me all of you and fudge rolls. So long as he can keep coming up with interesting plot lines for all of us we're safe. I just hope that he never gets a writers block.

2) My old landlord will shortly be getting his plus the possibility of a damage suit by me, after I get a grip on my work again.

3) My research has been damaged but (I hope) not irreparably by delay.

4) My classes I think will be OK. The easy one I still have to do and am caught up in. The hard one has the final (95% of the grade) in 2 weeks and I'm a month behind in the class, ~~the~~ because of landlord troubles, etc. This had me climbing the walls, but the professor, after hearing of my plight, has given me the option of taking an incomplete if I can't get ready for the final in time. Fun gonna try but it's comforting to know you can "bail out" if necessary.

be at meeting - I crashed after an OD of Tom: I will bring your sword down on Thursday and leave it in the Forum. There is nothing that ~~is~~ can really be called "Alignment" in ~~SFS~~ ^{SFS}. The closest thing is Loyalty. Remember! All characters are in ~~the~~ ^a Star Fleet, a military organization. Loyalty is how easy it is to:

- sway you from your duty
- command you to do hazardous things.

However, you can run an alien for me. One thing: after I finish the current adventure, ~~I will not~~ (this week). I will not run ^{SFS} again until Intercession. (Finals and other hasty things w/ them) During Intercession I will probably run at Waterloo.

However:

1) I would like you to run
D&D (Don't scream, Fred) or other ~~game~~ RPG. (preferably Fantasy) before then (I consider villains & vigilantes Fantasy) (hint) one night here in the Forum (or day - on the weekend) (like Saturday) (hint).
I understand you are a pretty good ref. and would like to see the horrors/wonders of D&D myself.
Or I would probably be willing to participate in any RPG you set up at least once.

To all: I will run SFS on Wed. at 7:00 PM
If we finish the current adventure within an hour and a half (real time)
I will have a "Shore Leave" adventure.
It might be simple. It might not.
Only I know in advance.

Ralph: Did you win??

Linda: Greetings and Felicitations.

Louis: HEY. Alone, Come to one that is you need to be like any intelligent G.I. Star Trek hating - SF fan and D&D nut. With ~~the~~ more than two other people, you go bizarrely power hungry/power mad. Wh? Note: Just because you are an asshole now doesn't mean it's permanent. It just looks that way.

R.S. Wrath-of-God does work in my gts universe.

However, no character can ask for this. It occurs only when:

Player characters are on a Battlecruiser surrounded by 5 sting carriers, 10 cruisers, 30 destroyers, etc. All of which are at almost Full Power and the players ship is nearly dead.

Then Wrath-of-God will even the odds. W.O.G. does 120 DG of damage. Also: Players can trigger (but not deliberately) Annoyance-of-God (for use vs. Players or NPCs) does 6 DG of damage.

Diary of a Physicist, by Prof. KJH written

Prof. R. Schiano and I were deep in the middle of our extremely important and delicate nuclear research experiments. We felt that we were on the verge of a new breakthrough in the field of nuclear energy. The tension was high. We cautiously began our final experiment which would either prove or disprove our theories. It all rested on this. Our whole life's work summed up in this experiment.

Suddenly the lights flicker then steady. ~~we~~ we broke out into cold sweats. The equipment was still running smoothly. Then the lights flickered again. Sinusoidally the dimmed and brighten - then - Darkness!!

Our experiment ruined!!! Our whole lives wasted!! The agony of defeat!!!!

I am working on a Noble Dwarf Mechanician Artificer. What spells ~~can~~ can be learned? Can Mechanicians research? What is a Mechanicians focus, if any? ~~When~~ When a spell (learned) is to be placed on a device, how is it done? Spoken? Written? Also: Do Dwarves automatically know Runes? To make a ~~magic~~ magic device capable of self-recharging, does an Astrologer need to be consulted? If so, how? (I'm trying to write up 30 or 40 years starting at EL I, MHL I age 13).

Gentlemen:

We must at least try to be nice to Howard. At least give him a chance to become a useful, productive member of the Forum. Howard may be sick, but it is a treatable disease, Not a 'breakdown of moral values.

Howard, if you read this, try and understand that basically the members of the Forum like you and will not go out of their way to provoke you into getting angry. It seems to be that you think the only way to gain stature in the Forum is by climbing on top of the heads of members you have defeated in battles of wits.

Howard, as far as any violent urges go, FORGET IT. there are better ways.

On a different ^{react} ~~react~~:

Gentlemen, Sex is our business.

(Opps... remind that. Gotta keep my image intact)

An interesting item in Pol 260, seems that policy Analysts come in 4 varieties depending on their levels of political savvy and analytic abilities. These categories can be changed to "interactive abilities" and "knowledge worth", more or less

		Analytic Abilities
		high	low
Political Savvy	high	Entrepreneur	Politician
	low	Technician	Pretender

For an explanation, over pretenders: Total idiots in policy analyses, Not Too many found

Technicians: Concerned with basic research and value of knowledge as tool to solve problems.

Is not too concerned with implementation of a policy as much as the basic truth and perfection of the policy

Politician: Concerned with the political/social realities that can destroy a policy despite the inherent perfection of it. As opposed to a technician, (who believes that the inherent truth of a policy will carry it) politicians emphasise the consensus building around an issue that can make even a minimal policy succeed.

Entrepreneur: The ultimate combination of the above. Entrepreneurs are ideology oriented and gather knowledge to support or further define the ideology and the programs associated with them. However, this search for knowledge is tempered with political realities of limited resources to expend on information and the need for a consensus of opinion behind a policy.

Gee, I thought they just wanted money.

Buzz off

I would agree that 90% of the Forum is Technicians. Knowledge is important, not ideology or consensus building - "We shall know the truth, and the truth shall set us free" and all that sort of thing.

Yours in knowledge-gathering,

Bill

Report: I bid you all my best wishes for this weekend. I hope that all of you enjoy this movie, and most probably I will meet you at a common spot. Do you realize that you have made no rendezvous coordinates and no provisions for eating? As commander of strike force Gamma, I will direct them to rendezvous coordinates 'McDonald's' or in front of theater. As I don't have tickets, I'll be seeing it elsewhere. Now I still have $118.50. Hmm... Interesting thought, Kurt. ^{(What?) (Candlelight?)}

Important!

I have just walked out of the quiz, was moderately prepared. Ugh! Well, I'll be off soon. Margaret, note this, please! If I am accompanying the crew home (the brook) watch me sleep in here again! If I do, please come back here around 9:00 Saturday Morning or earlier to wake me up. I need some help with my bags, and if you have a t.v. set, it would be nice if you were watching Dr. Who and I could watch with you. I would really appreciate it if you would. In return for this favor, ask for it, I'll get it. I'll even make donations! I can afford it! See you later,

IT IS WORTH THE PAIN OF AN

L.I.R.R. STRIKE*

GOOD NIGHT (or is it morning already?)

Sat Morn, Bill B

① The Trek movie was great, but it could have been on another astral plane. I thought Kirk shoulda been snuffed & Decker given command.

② Howard, lay back - what I mean is that given no belligerence from you, the Forum will accept you. Allow the Forum to accept you as Howard, not as a collection of Not-So-Witty phrases.

③ Carol: (Read Howard's Entry first)

Now, my message:

Better yet, don't jump. I mean, like, you'll go splatt and make a mess and it would kind of kill you, you know. Instead, spend a date with me. I have heard snide remarks to the tune, a night with me is a fate worse than death. [If the preceding doesn't make you smile (at the most) well I guess it'll turn in my Union] [Which Union you ask? You know, the peanut butter Union card, SciFi (Skippy)]

And that is the only comment I will make, anyways.

④ I think I may jump off Brad (like into a vat of molten peanut butter. (Super chance, Natch))

⑤ I'd better write something for Jay now.

⑥ Kirk shoulda said, "U'ger, you're blocking. How do you feel about the Creator?"

I can drive ~~me~~ Sunday for party supplies. Contact me.

Report: Feedback on the film was/is apparently favorable with only minor reservations. Central Park was quiet last night and was rather pretty. COCA FILMS TONIGHT, WHO'S GOING? Margaret, you left your sweater here. I'm sorry I wasn't here, since contingent plans left us at Kurt's house. If you came, thanks for the effort.

m. I enjoyed the Trek movie even though the plot was too much like The Changeling. The dialogue was perfect, the special effects were magnificent, the sound track was terrific, and the ~~sets~~ sets were gorgeous! It was worth $6. The LIRR strike was a real pain, though. I had to go home and get yelled at by my parents for keeping them up.

let's have more cars in strategic locations if there is a possibility of a strike. I don't want to go through the aggravation again.

What are you people bringing to the party? I don't want to duplicate (or triplicate, etc.) what someone else is bringing. (Imagine 20 bags of pretzels and nothing else.)

Bill: When are you going shopping? I may want to go, but it depends on the time. I still have at least five more pages of my paper to write and then I have to type it.

That's all for now. If anyone wants to see the movie again (or for the 1st time) and has transportation, I know. I have to see it again.

STAR TREK LIVES AGAIN!

Dave Kratz & I went to see ~~going to see today~~ STAR TREK The Motion Picture today. We stayed for 2 showings, ~~the~~ puts the number of times I've seen the film at 3. The movie was well worth seeing. The feeling was overwhelming as Kirk and Scotty cruised ~~the~~ (in the excursion pod) up to the newly refurbished Enterprise still in drydock. The real significance of this movie was seeing the crew reunited. The Voyager encounter was interesting and ~~the~~ ~~most~~ enjoyable, even though it was a bit dragged out and there were some parallels to 'Changeling'. This movie has outdone all in spaceborn special effects, utilizing a large number of spacecraft and elaborate sets. The Enterprise is now finely detailed inside and out. We now have seen many parts of the ship they couldn't have afforded to do on the TV show. The Klingons although different physically, are characterized the same. Their battle with V'GER is one of the most memorable sequences in the movie. I could ramble on forever but I don't have the time. The important thing is that STAR TREK is back.

Even if this adventure did not meet everyone's expectations, it leaves open a myriad of new adventures.

The Human Adventure is Just Beginning

Marge; Will be down here or at Waterloo. Be seeing you there. On Monday; 7912:00 Is that from 10: -11 AM or PM? PM, is the meeting time! Since that 12:45 time is the wrong time to go out, I trust you mean morning, in which case, I am available for assistance if you want it.
XVI ~~Perianne~~ Perianne; I'm going to Loew's twin in New York Saturday.
Tom is considering your request as well. I suggest you go with Tom, since I can't guarantee prolonged safety for anyone in my company till 2 the Magic Time, the eve of Christ's birth, Christmas, at least in 1400 Manhattan, midtown especially. Once again, Interesting Idea, Kurt.
Once again, I am seated in the librarian's chair, awaiting visitors, at 1:45.

this is the pits. Bill T. Bianco said he would meet me down in the forum tonight, but I don't see him here. I'm approaching the limits of my endurance. I must leave soon. I will return 11:00 A.M. To the forum, then, I'm off to Waterloo for the day. I'm sending a simple person through C & S, if Rusty gives me a hand in rolling up a character.

Announcement: I am accepting Head Librarian's commission as Sargeant-at-Arms of the forum. I would like permission of a choice of Lance Corporal at-Arms as an able-bodied assistant. This acceptance will be made official at Monday's meeting/party. I request that someone help clean up in here prior to this occasion.

Signing off till tomorrow,

P.S. Margaret; I found your sweater in a state of disarray. For your convenience, I dusted it off and folded it up here. Consider it a minor courtesy, you don't have to thank me, since it's nothing special.

My roommate got up at 9 A.M. and made a lot of noise! I think she had half the hall in our suite room. Normally I am not awake at this hour on a Sunday.

Bill: I remembered that I am expecting a call today and I still have about seven or eight pages of my paper to write. Therefore, I will not be going shopping with you. Sorry.

George: It's a good thing I can recognize your handwriting. ☺

Margaret: Please come down and get your sweater before George washes it for you!

All: Who else wants to see THE MOVIE? I really do want to see it for a second but with the RIRR on strike I can't get an except the LOEWS in Stony Brook. I also do have a lot of time in these last two weeks I don't have to write my paper or study for it but I can make some if I have advance notice.

Dana: I told you the strike was still on. Why doesn't anyone listen to me?

It is Lieutenant - At Arms, the Forum has never settled for mere sergeants. (Though in its present degenerated state, perhaps a private at arms will be all it can muster).
Star Trek is DEAD! Trekkies are Zombies! The Times said its (ST-UN) dialogue was bad and its vision of the future tacky. And I say that it meets the Voyager Mission! The Human Adventure must enter its post-Trek phase at once!
