Log #88

Start: January 25, 2016

So, Shamik was waiting outside the Forum, as usual.

Lydia: (To Amanda) I just noticed you were wearing socks

Amanda: Yeah, cuz I was wearing boots

Shamik: And pants

Lydia: Boots and pants and boots and pants...

Shamik: (To Amanda who was vacuuming) The floor is so clean, you could eat off it... but don't.

Harrison Ben: (In context of people's alter egos)

DJ: so we got Revodka, Chlamydia ~~Fernandale~~ FernandAidy, Shawear, Shampoo, ... Shamu/Shamwow, Treevice, DJ Speedway, Antonio

↳ you see cause he's always in the room and it's like an exhibit you pay to see

Sambou: Goddammit I'm a black fish trapped in a tank

DO YOU WANT THAT DOG WITH A DRUG DEPENANCY? SUCKING DICK IN A BACK ALLEY?

Lydia: I avoid the honky ponky when I'm ovulating.

Amanda: I don't track when I'm ovulating because I like a challenge.

AJ: Chlamydia Fernand AIDS you're great, harder to get rid of but easier than glitter.

Amanda: Ted, you need someone who you can touch their penis and their heart

01/30

(in context of Reese walking to Starbucks w/o shoes)

James: If you give a mouse a cookie, chances are he'll want some milk to go with it. And with the milk he'll blow up the fucking world. So put your damn boots on!

Samban: "If I had a Stand, it would be called Roundabout©, and its power is to prolong a fight by cutting to the Jojo end credits!" ← Travis' Idea

Rules:

- The beginning 37 seconds of the song plays, and everything turns sepia and freezes. The "to be continued" arrow zooms past everyone in their peripheral vision. Then hard cut to end credits. Everyone is conscious and aware as they have to sit there for the entire song.
- Revised: The song starts, and everyone can hear it. When the chords before the chorus hit, everything within the user's sight instantly turns sepia-toned and stops, and the arrow moves across the bottom of the POV. The area affected freezes for the duration of the entire credit sequence. The user can then get a cup of coffee or whatever.

9/2018 - Had an in depth discussion about skull fucking. No one won.

9/21/18 - I hereby begin the Homebrew List of Skull. Too many games were played, too much rage. So far two mechanics have been added and two new styles of game play. The two new mechanics are: double challenge win and adding cards to hand. The first mechanic works by having the rule that you must successfully complete two challenges without failing one inbetween. If you do, then you must flip your mat back to 0 points. The second mechanic is during the failed skull path. When a person gets a skull from another individual (hereby called skuller), the skuller typically picks a card the challenger must discard. In this version mechanic the skuller may take the card instead and add it to their hand. (Works best with more players). The two new versions I will refer to as colour splash and anarchy mode. "Colour Splash" has the # of ~~colours~~ coloured hands = to # of players (e.g. 4 tribes for 24 players and their corresponding colours per tribe). This version has # of coloured hands = to # of players still, but the cards are lightly shuffled. This is to hide where the skulls are while applying the skuller steal. (Working on mods). The last one "Anarchy Mode" is a lot of fun. For best results # of coloured hands > # of players, but can work with the max of 6. All coloured hands are used and shuffeled at random. Each player still gets 4 cards per hand. All Ultra cards are placed aside and no one can look. The standard win condition still applies but another is added. If you can get all 4 skulls as your hand, you win. The Stealer Steal mechanic is fun for this one and allows the second win condition

Scanned with CamScanner

9/25 Notes version of Skulls: The general rules are the same but the changes are fun The minimum amount to bet is 1 not two. The challenge passes between people untill everyone passes. This means if player A starts the challenge with two and it goes around to the rest of the players then player A is still in the betting pool. Such that they can up the Challenge even more. The other would be that after all of your cards have been revealed you may immediately add a card instead of waiting untill your turn.

A game of Dominion featuring cards from all expansions occurred. Chris accumulated 7 duplicates with the plan to use them to acquire 8 Duchies for the price of one and win the game. Ken with his army of nearly all the Masquerades in the game ended the game one turn too early for Chris to put forward his master plan. Taylor however still had the chance to play. She played every card in her deck this last turn including a Masquerade given to her by Ken. With this turn she gives Chris a curse which blesses him with the lowest Dominion score of -1.

If his plan worked he would've won the game with 20-23 (Taylor scoring 18 points, 12 on her last turn and Ken with 10).

Scanned with CamScanner

Good evening. Since I imagine that most of the basic context will be known to you, I'll try to keep things within shouting distance of the point and the preliminaries to a minimum.

You are no doubt aware that I, Mikey Andrews, am seeking the Forum's authorization to perform a wedding in Oregon, for another Forumite alum. And I, of course, am aware that there's some concern about whether that's a thing you can (or should) do. I'll try to lay out why I think you can.

Oregon's marriage laws were revised a few years ago to grant secular organizations parity with religious organizations in terms of authorizing wedding officiants. The Establishment Clause being what it is, the bar for what kind of organization can do this is pretty darn low. After all, the state doesn't really want to get into the murky territory of deciding which religions do and do not count.

What this means, in practice, is that the law simply requires that the secular organization fulfill a role parallel to that of a religion in the celebrants' lives (which is really up to the celebrants' own judgment,) and that the organization exist. There's no written requirement that it be an independent organization (many churches aren't, after all) or that it be formally incorporated in any particular way, or at all. It just has to exist, which the Forum of course does.

So all that's really required is for the Forum to vote that I can conduct the wedding of Don Frier and Amanda Willis, after which I put it on the license, some bored clerk in Oregon stamps the form, and that's it.

It's also worth noting that if, a year or five from now, some random clerk says, "Holy shit, why'd we let that happen?" nothing will happen to the marriage. A marriage entered into in good faith by the celebrants still counts, even if it turns out the officiant had no authorization, or even if the officiant outright lied about having it. That's on the officiant, not on anyone else. (Oregon state laws, 106.140.)

The worst I can see happening here is that we go in to fill out the license, and the clerk tells us to fuck off. Oregon doesn't really have an interest here in closely regulating how and by whom people get married, though, and I don't expect that. You can look at Oregon's laws yourselves if you'd like; marriage is in Chapter 106. But hey, I'm not a lawyer, so.

We'd love to do this under the Forum's auspices, because we think it's a really neat idea and we think it would be fun, but it's really not the end of the world if you guys aren't comfortable with it. There are other options, more well-established secular groups who are already in the habit of authorizing these kinds of things, that we can go to. (To say nothing of the innumerable religions that consist solely of some scuzzy rando cranking out marriage certificates in their basements.)

But it would be neat. Really neat. Just let us know what you decide.

Start: January 25, 2016

So, Shamih was waiting outside the Forum, as usual.

Lydia: (To Amanda) I just noticed you were wearing socks

Amanda: Yeah, cuz I was wearing boots

Shamih: And pants

Lydia: Boots and pants and boots and pants...

Shamih: (To Amanda who was vacuuming) The floor is so clean, you could eat off it... but don't.

DO YOU WANT THAT DOG WITH A DRUG DEPENANCY? SUCKING DICK IN A BACK ALLEY?

Lydia: I avoid the hanky panky when I'm ovulating.

Amanda: I don't track when I'm ovulating because I like a challenge.

AJ: Chlamydia Fernand AIDS you're great. Harder to get rid of but easier than glitter.

Amanda: Ted, you need someone who you can touch their penis and their heart

Samban: "If I had a Stand, it would be called Roundabout®, and its power is to prolong a fight by cutting to the Jojo end credits!" ← Travis' Idea

Rules:

- The beginning 37 seconds of the song plays, and everything turns sepia and freezes. The "to be continued" arrow zooms past everyone in their peripheral vision. Then hard cut to end credits. Everyone is conscious and aware and they have to sit there for the entire song.
- Revised: The song starts, and everyone can hear it. When the chords before the chorus hit, everything within the user's sight instantly turns sepia-tone and stops, and the arrow moves across the bottom of the POV. The area affected freezes for the duration of the entire credit sequence. The user can then get a cup of coffee or whatever.

9/2018 - Had an in depth discussion about skull fucking. No one won.

9/21/18 - I hereby begin the Homebrew List of Skull. Too many games were played, too much rage. So far two mechanics have been added and two new styles of game play. The two new mechanics are: double challenge win and adding cards to hand. The first mechanic works by having the rule that you must successfully complete two challenges without failing one inbetween. If you do, then you must flip your mat back to 0 points. The second mechanic is during the failed skull path. When a person gets a skull from another individual (hereby called skuller), the skuller typically picks a card the challenger must discard. In this ~~version~~ mechanic the skuller may take the card instead and add it to their hand. (Works best with more players). The two new versions I will refer to as colour splash and anarchy mode. "Colour Splash" has the # of ~~colours~~ coloured hands = to # of players (e.g. 4 tribes for 21 players and their corresponding colours per tribe). This version has # of coloured hands = to # of players still, but the cards are lightly shuffled. This is to hide where the skulls are while applying the skuller steal. (Working on mods). The last one "Anarchy Mode" is a lot of fun. For best results # of coloured hands > # of players, but can work with the min of 6. All coloured hands are used and shuffeled at random. Each player still gets 4 cards per hand. All Ultra cards are placed aside and no one can look. The standard win condition still applies but another is added. If you can get all 4 skulls as your hand, you win. The Stealer steal mechanic is fun for this one and allows the second win condition

9/25 Notes version of Skulls: The general rules are the same but the changes are fun The minimum amount to bet is 1 not two. The challenge passes between people until everyone passes. This means if player A starts the challenge with two and it goes around to the rest of the players then player A is still in the betting pool. Such that they can up the challenge even more. The other would be that after all of your cards have been revealed you may immediately add a card instead of waiting until your turn.

Behold the Greatest Game of Skulls

4 players: Ken, Neville, Chris, and Angela

All left with one card

Neville, Chris, and Angela all had a skull

Ken had a flower

Neville won by elimination of everyone else

Ken had a chance of winning, but he decided to challenge 2 instead of 1, and fucked himself.

Let it be known that Neville had only a skull for the last 4 rounds

Chris made the sacrifice play allowing neville to survive his challenge.

A game of Dominion featuring cards from all expansions occurred. Chris accumulated 7 duplicates with the plan to use them to acquire 8 Duchies for the price of one and win the game. Ken with his army of nearly all the Masquerades in the game ended the game one turn too early for Chris to put forward his master plan. Taylor however still had the chance to play. She played every card in her deck this last turn including a Masquerade given to her by Ken. With this turn she gives Chris a curse which blesses him with the lowest dominion score of -1.

If his plan worked he would've won the game with 20-23 (Taylor scoring 18 points, 12 on her last turn and Ken with 10).

Not good Then

Scanned with CamScanner

Good evening. Since I imagine that most of the basic context will be known to you, I'll try to keep things within shouting distance of the point and the preliminaries to a minimum.

You are no doubt aware that I, Mikey Andrews, am seeking the Forum's authorization to perform a wedding in Oregon, for another Forumite alum. And I, of course, am aware that there's some concern about whether that's a thing you can (or should) do. I'll try to lay out why I think you can.

Oregon's marriage laws were revised a few years ago to grant secular organizations parity with religious organizations in terms of authorizing wedding officiants. The Establishment Clause being what it is, the bar for what kind of organization can do this is pretty darn low. After all, the state doesn't really want to get into the murky territory of deciding which religions do and do not count.

What this means, in practice, is that the law simply requires that the secular organization fulfill a role parallel to that of a religion in the celebrants' lives (which is really up to the celebrants' own judgment,) and that the organization exist. There's no written requirement that it be an independent organization (many churches aren't, after all) or that it be formally incorporated in any particular way, or at all. It just has to exist, which the Forum of course does.

So all that's really required is for the Forum to vote that I can conduct the wedding of Don Frier and Amanda Willis, after which I put it on the license, some bored clerk in Oregon stamps the form, and that's it.

It's also worth noting that if, a year or five from now, some random clerk says, "Holy shit, why'd we let that happen?" nothing will happen to the marriage. A marriage entered into in good faith by the celebrants still counts, even if it turns out the officiant had no authorization, or even if the officiant outright lied about having it. That's on the officiant, not on anyone else. (Oregon state laws, 106.140.)

The worst I can see happening here is that we go in to fill out the license, and the clerk tells us to fuck off. Oregon doesn't really have an interest here in closely regulating how and by whom people get married, though, and I don't expect that. You can look at Oregon's laws yourselves if you'd like; marriage is in Chapter 106. But hey, I'm not a lawyer, so.

We'd love to do this under the Forum's auspices, because we think it's a really neat idea and we think it would be fun, but it's really not the end of the world if you guys aren't comfortable with it. There are other options, more well-established secular groups who are already in the habit of authorizing these kinds of things, that we can go to. (To say nothing of the innumerable religions that consist solely of some scuzzy rando cranking out marriage certificates in their basements.)

But it would be neat. Really neat. Just let us know what you decide.

Taylor: "Hello? Hello?" * puts on the voice of hotter quieter suburban yoga + minivan long island mom * "Hello Tony? Hey! Tony, I'm so glad I got ahold of you. Tony, I need a favor. I went down to the laundromat - the one door on Berkeley that Bella showed us next to the really good bagel place - I went down to the laundromat, and I saw Bethany of all people, Bethany! I saw Bethany, and y'know what she said to me - this bitch said that my bag is fake! Tony, you know I don't spend all this money just for this chick to come and tell me it's fake! So Tony, I need a favor, Tony, I need you to get rid of this chick, I don't want to see this chick around no mo'. I know, I said last time was the last time, but this time is the last time I swear! Corona Chronicles, Day -14, By Taylor H 14 days to form closing.

The Virus has defeated Stony Brook. Stanley's leaving has left the school open to attack after attack. First the internet had collapsed, the heat and water were stolen and returned, and now pandemic reigns.

The information was sparse at first. Emails were rare, professors were clueless as us and the Stony Brook News was the only source of information, and reliability was questionable at best.

Headline after headline drained our faith like ~~pasta~~ boiled pasta through a strainer. Corona in NYC, in Nassau, in Suffolk. Quarantined study abroad students quarantined in Southampton. One Javits lecture canceled class. Then another, then another. "Keep six feet apart" they told us. "Wash hands, isolate yourselves, stay alone. Do nothing. Be nothing." South-P's line shrieked. The computers are being exiled we're told. All classes online. All clubs online. Our life online.

Abandon all hope, ye who enter here.

Corona Chronicles Day 14 By Tabitha

GodDAMMIT!!! I've been hoping the rumors were just that - RUMORS! Now classes have started being moved online. News has broken out all classes after break will be held online. Club activity will be cancelled. We're being forced to run our activity underground in a metaphorical sense as well as the usual literal one. You know last week my mom used my being asthmatic to guilt my dad into hanging out with us? "She might be dead in two weeks!" She exclaimed. Now this? Coronavirus sucks. I'm just trying to get my education now I'll be holed up in my house, exiled from my home in the forum. Animal Crossing will be my only solace in these dark times...

5/8/20 # Rigging of Roth Regatta

All of those involved shall remain nameless

The 2020 Roth Regatta due to the virus™ was made to be an online popularity contest instead of a race. Out of the 9 boats submitted online 3 of which were from formmites, so it is natural that shenanigans followed. After a failure in the first round it was discovered, after PUSO had 70% of all votes, that one could vote as many times as they wanted. The failure of the ~~virtual~~ developer of the virtual Roth Regatta was our boon. Spamming ~~today~~ ensued, and while not against the rules, it was still a little cheaty. So discovering this tactic 35 minutes before voting closed, we spamed. Macros were made. ~~Votes went~~ one boat went from 4% to 27% in mere minutes. After evening the vote between this boat and ~~the~~ PUSO's we shifted to the official formm boat. ~~The spirit boat activated.~~ We shifted into MAXIMUM OVERDRIVE. We zoomed the boat into first at 42% ~~pride~~ surpassing the other formm boat and leaving PUSO's at 23% ~~Friends~~ Each percentage was calculated to be about 8 votes so we totaled about 600 votes. Due to our exploit the event organizers required logging

It's a part of Forum history and I don't want to be the president that lost the rock even if it is beyond my hands.

I know it's cursed and it's possible future historians will spin it to be like "the curse was lifted" story but it's pretty likely it will become a story told far less. Often than once a year if it's gone... and definite alumni that come in will likely be "where's the rock

The Dating Sim

I lost my soul for this game (and HW Time) -Taylor

So Uh ~~we~~ made a dating game
For the longest time we wanted to make one and we did.

Literally we've talked about it in long conversations ~~about~~ at least 5 times

So ~~the~~ the SBU game dev club was hosting a competition to make a VN, visual novel in renpy a python dating sim game maker. Renpy was actually ~~a~~ made by a SBU Alumni who lived in kings park and judged the games.

~~with this inspiration inspiration~~ ~~inspiration~~

With this inspiration we embarked on making a game.

~~Andrew and Taylor Working Alright~~
~~maybe~~

Scanned with CamScanner

In fact, a ~~few~~ few days prior we were discussing making a game. And some of us downloaded renpy even.

So we were ready

Praise Nate → Nate was lead coder and did all the crazy magic to get the game working

Jake 18k words → Taylor wrote a dummy long 3000 word script for the game a lot of full backgrounds → Jolee drew all the background to capture SBU

Thomas picked out and looped the game's music

Angela, while not fully in the competition, drew the character designs for the 5-6 characters in the final game

What was the game about?

The forum, the people in it, dating, and the theme of the competition, "An ~~unlucky~~ unlucky ~~valentine~~ valentine"

The Union was also unfortunately flooded for a day leading to this next story. P.S. There were also a bunch of funny reddit videos of the flood.

~~Wilbur~~ Nomadic Formites: Since the Union was closed the forum went to a nomadic style. In the morning Thomas and Aaron held the forum at a metal table outside the SAC. We unpacked 1 storage unit successfully Unfortunately the other storage unit was barely scratched as we realized it held 70 heavy packed with books, boxes. We do not have space for that right now. we need a plan. Following this we went to the diner and all got food, played pokemon, and had a good time.

We currently have a problem, we have no tables. Dave Shane and Angela checked with administration why the layout is screwed up with no table. We found out our blueprints did not have a table and were in our shitty layout. It was made ~~by the president 5 yrs~~ 5 years ago, so we all think it was RJ. We now are all blaming RJ.

RJ told me about a complaint but lacked details and I told to me being strong and anyways for a month straight convinced "This is when I get kicked out"

Taylor: Is your piss sticky?
Sammy: Is yours not???

Matt: "I thought it was my frat mates, but it was Jens."
sighs in relief

Taylor: Will, you're telling me that the issue isn't that he raped his daughter but that he did it during a solar eclipse?

Aaron: The intersex chapel -
Shani: Inter FAITH Aaron!
Aaron: Whatever, intersex is a more common word.

9/21 Thomas: Aaron, what kind of underwear do you wear?
Aaron: Why??
Thomas: I want to know

Taylor: We have realized that the minority of girls here actually wear girls' underwear.

THE FURRET VORING OF 2021

Also 21st Night of September

Do you remember the 21st night of September?
It's not a thing

Taylor (playing FNAF)(Yes in 2021): I'M GETTING DOUBLE TEAMED.

Taylor: If she breathe, she a thot, if they move, they be dead

Entire Room: Quietly humming along to the Plants vs Zombies theme

9/24 Kendall: you're making a mockery of Puyo Puyo Tetris
Taylor: I'll never make fun of Pussy Popping Tetris

9/26 Sammy: Have sex you fucking slimes!
20 min later
Sammy: They had sex. whoo!
Jolee: Voyeurism yay!
Sammy: Weep having sex!

4/27 : ~~FOFA~~ Forum plays Monster Prom

Jolee as Oz

Angela as Vicky

Pierre as Brian

Sean as Amira

Everyone in the room voice acted, it was fun.

Damien's voice actor had to keep leaving for class, so he had 4 different voice actors.

Brian and Amira couldn't get a date in time.

Oz went with Vera.

Vicky and Damien had fight night on prom night which lead to what you would expect with hormonal and horny high schoolers. BEST ENDING

4/30 MONSTER CAMP FUCKING SUCKS

Monster Prom Rules

Pierre's voice was almost gone after rowing a single week why does everyone think Damien has a raspy voice.

10/11 I Thomas go to the wellness event (Fall festival) where they give out a bunch of free stuff, especially condoms. Unloading my free stuff to while forma leaves despite ~~meeting~~ meeting being in 7 minutes to go & get free condoms, and other stuff but mostly condoms. This is worse than the running of the formalities when taylor left with everyone for vr right before meeting. Let it be known most of eb'd and left for this too! while we were out we also found will separately from the forma group also skipping meeting.

10/20 Sam: All I need is the D.

23OCT21 Today we played Roblox Squid Game and bullied little children online. In the beginning, we (Sam and I (Kendall)) attempted to win fairly, and failed. We soon recruited Aaron and Dino to help us in our endeavors. Now with the power of friendship and pushing others in Red-light Green-light, we would make it to the glass panels. In the show "Squid Game" this is the second to last game, however in Roblox Squid Game it is third to last. We would lose at the glass panels several times due to lack of players, so we devised a strategy. Since both Sam and I had auto-clickers, we could make it so tug-of-war would always end in a tie, allowing all players to advance. However, even with more players it was still not enough. We tried over and over, with failure after failure until one player who went by "Gold" showed us how to jump between the panels. But time was running out and we all died. In the next Roblox Squid Game we would make it past the glass panes, only to find out we had to play marbles next. Never having played the Roblox Squid Game marbles game, Dino assumed it would work the same as in the Show. With me (Kendall) and him (Dino) paired up, he decided to give his life up for me. However this is not how Roblox Squid Game works. Instead, each player plays against the house, and only loses when they reach zero marbles. Guessing even each time I (Kendall) was able to win the marble game with 3 (three) marbles. Now I (Kendall) was alone against three (3) other players. I looked back on what I lost to get here; Dino... Sam... Aaron... that guy who looked like Mat Pat (Mathew Patrick from GT (Game Theory))... and my mind. Now all I had to do was win the Squid Game. Each player was provided a baseball bat and it was a battle royale. Nothing could stand in the way of my epic gaming gamer powers I (Kendall) thought to myself, so with my LED Cat-ear Headphones equiped I (Kendall) went Super-Saiyan-Ultra-Instinct-Over-Nine-thousand on the other three (3) players, who were probably fifth (5th) graders that had never watched the original Squid Game Show. In other words, I (Kendall) let them fight eachother and then beat the last one standing who was at half health. I (Kendall) did it, I (Kendall) had taken victoy (not a misspelling) over several children online, but at what cost. Now there is no-one, only me (Kendall), and now I (Kendall) sit at the desk in the SBUSF4M writing about the Roblox Squid Game, alone, with nobody who may still be playing Roblox or sleeping in the back aroud (you cannot prove otherwise). As I (Kendall) finish this log book I (Kendall) ask you (the reader), would you too give up everything to win in the Roblox Squid Game as I (Kendall) have chosen to do?
